Bank of Houston, N.A., Houston, Texas, Converts to a State-Chartered Bank

Banking Commissioner Charles G. Cooper announced today that Bank of Houston, N.A., headquartered in Houston, Texas, has completed its conversion to a Texas state-chartered bank from a national banking association. The bank will begin operating under its new charter as Bank of Houston effective June 22, 2022.

Originally chartered in January 1892 as The Dublin National Bank, Dublin, Texas, the bank was purchased in May 2018 and its home office moved to Houston, at which time its name was changed to Bank of Houston, N.A. The bank is wholly owned by BOH Holdings, Inc. and will enter the state banking system with approximately $570 million in assets. FDIC deposit insurance coverage for all deposits will continue without interruption or change.

Chairman/Chief Executive Officer/President James Stein leads the bank’s executive team. The bank retains a branch office in Dublin, in addition to its main facility in Houston.

"I am pleased to welcome Bank of Houston to the Texas state banking system and its 130-year history of providing a range of banking services to its customers, “Commissioner Cooper stated. “I look forward to working with the bank’s Board and management to ensure the bank successfully integrates into the state banking system.”
